What an organizer like this would expect from Tickify?

SaMoni would like to increase its sales and get more popular on the web. After their own website failure they had the feeling that they could not make actual sales on the Internet. They need to be promoted on a platform that is already known in the digital world for its marketing services and where they could be the big event planning name they have always been. They do realize that the times are changing and they need the web popularity to keep their place on the market. They already have their success on Facebook which is a big step to their goal to enter the virtual world but that is not enough to provide a digital ticket selling service. The company needs a new way to sell their tickets and to do so they need the help of our experienced team. They can be sure that with our marketing skills and web knowledge they will achieve a great sales boost.